

Dear Quicksilver Customer,

I'm writing to let you know some important breaking news. Quicksilver has been sold to Woosh Wireless Limited.

The Quicksilver services will continue as they do today, and this new partnership with Woosh means we can broaden the range of services that we offer you.

Woosh is one of the most progressive wireless organisations in the world having developed a portable low cost, high quality Voice over Internet (VoIP) service and bundled this together with a high quality broadband internet service.

The team at Quicksilver would like to thank you for your loyalty and support over the last 7 years and we look forward to continue working for you.

You will be kept well informed of any changes that emerge from the union of Woosh and Quicksilver and we look forward to offering you exciting and innovative new products and services in the near future.

Once again thank you for your continued support.

Regards

Matthew Hobbs

CEO, Quicksilver Internet

About Woosh Wireless

Woosh Wireless launched its new generation wireless broadband service in September 2003. Woosh is one of the most progressive wireless organisations in the world having developed a portable low cost, high quality Voice over Internet (VoIP) service and bundled this together with a high quality wireless broadband internet service.

Woosh offers New Zealanders a telecommunications choice. The Woosh Wireless network throughout New Zealand is growing fast, offering high-speed wireless broadband and phone services with coverage areas

To find out more about the Woosh story, visit the website:

www.woosh.com

